Thirty-Six Million in One Hand

Eight cheques totalling in value no less a sum than $36,754,250 changed hands on May 1 when the Canadian Pacific Railway Company received from the Dominion Government at that time. It will be remembered that in June of that year the Canadian Pacific had to raise the sixty million to meet maturing obligations. The money markets of the world were then feeling the full effect of the financial crisis and were closed with the result that it was not possible for the Dominion Government to borrow so large a sum on advantageous terms. The Canadian banks therefore agreed to combine in making this loan, but as an added measure of security to the banks the Dominion Government agreed to guarantee the loan.

ALBERTA CROP REPORT No. 1, 1936

Issued by Alberta Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, May 8th

Spring work on the land over the Province became more or less general about a week ago but in central areas, and the Edmonton zone seeding is again delayed by recent heavy rains. In the Peace River district considerable rain has fallen north of the river but the weather has been fair with occasional showers in the Grande Prairie area. The season is later than normal by about one week in the south of the Province and approximately the centre and north, excepting in the Peace River area which is considerably ahead of last year, especially south of the river. Soil conditions throughout the Province are good excepting in some parts of the north where there is an excess of moisture because of heavy winter snows and spring rains which occurred before the land could dry out. There is an abundance of surface moisture in all districts, with reserve moisture apparently plentiful except in some parts of the south-eastern areas.

Facing a Big Deficit

The discovery that the operations of the Federal government for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1936, resulted in a deficit of approximately $162,000,000, as announced by Hon. Chas. A. Dunning in the recent budget speech in the House of Commons must have come as a considerable shock to a large percentage of the Canadian people who must pay the piper.

The shock is not assuaged at all by the additional announcement that the increase in the sales tax since 1931 to eight per cent, which the government decided to levy will not be a heavy enough impost to enable the government to balance the budget for the current fiscal year and that, on the other hand, the best that can be expected from this and other minor levies is a deficit of approximately $100,000,000 for this year.

Not much is to be gained by any attempt to lay the blame for this enormous deficit at the door of any particular administration. Doubtless politicians within the fold of the two major political parties will rise up and assert that the other party is at fault, in the one case the former regime and in the other the present administration, while adherents of other parties, who have not yet been given an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to govern the country, will declare that the economic system is to be blamed.

The fact remains that there is a shortage of $162,000,000 as the difference between governmental income and outgo which has to be made up by approximately 10,000,000 people and the same number of people are apparently likely to have to make up another 100,000,000 or a little less next year. The money must come out of the pockets of these ten million Canadians and apparently the only way to get it is by increasing taxation in some form or another.

The government has decided that the loss is to be made up partially by an additional levy of two per cent. In the form of sales tax, which means by the extraction of another two cents on every dollar spent by the consumers on practically "everything manufactured and produced in Canada." Hon. Mr. Dunning stated that by this means the government is placing the burden on "rich and poor alike." Whether it will work out that way in actual practice, it is almost impossible to say at this stage, whatever the intention may be.

It is axiomatic that in the final analysis the consumer must and does foot the country's tax bill, and it is a matter of history that sometimes business not only collects the tax from the consumer but a little bit more by adding a small profit on the tax as well as on the cost of the goods and the cost of their distribution. In this way a tax sometimes becomes pyramided by the time the goods on which they are levied reach the consumer. The present system of taxation is a matter of kind of thing possible and it is to be hoped that the government will take such measures as are necessary to see that the consumer is not forced to pay an additional tribute to retailers, jobbers, wholesalers and manufacturers, or any of them as a result of the increase in the sales tax.

For any government, of course, a sales tax or an increase in sales tax, is one of the easiest ways of securing revenue from its subjects. Within a couple of months of the time the government has decided to increase the tax they are paying another two per cent towards governmental administration on practically everything they buy, because it is a hidden impost.

In this connection there would seem to be some merit in the sales tax system in vogue in the United States where the tax is collected by the retailer and where the retailer is required to show on his bill to the customer the price of the article and the amount collected on his tax as a separate item.

The system, while unquestionably irksome and cumbersome to the retailer, at least has the advantage of making the consumer "tax conscious" in the same way as has a direct income tax. Every time he makes a purchase from a nickel up to a dollar he knows where the tax is coming from, a contribution to the government and the amount he is contributing. If this system were in effect throughout Canada, no doubt it would result in greater pressure being brought to bear on the government to economize and might act as a deterrent in the number of requests made to the government for expenditures which might be avoided.

There are, on the other hand, some very potent arguments against the adoption of such a system of tax levy and collection. It would often result, no doubt, in efforts on the part of consumers to induce the retailers to absorb the tax and where competition is keen might result in injustice to the merchants. In addition to which, the time that this method of billing and collection would require, would no doubt entail extra cost to the merchant which, under present conditions, he could ill afford.

Sounds Like Good Idea

Children in England Learning Problems Of British Railways

"Great Britain is the only country which trains its children in modern transportation," said a spokesman of the Associated British Railways, in discussing a nation-wide educational program for children recently started.

"Not satisfied with mere rapid mechanical development, the heads of British railways have realized that, in the long run, the nation's future rests directly upon their understanding of rail transport problems. Realizing that transport is for the ages and not merely for the adults of to-day, they have begun to teach the children the fundamental facts of railroading and are conducting a series of nation-wide demonstrations for school children. Over 40,000 children have attended these. Instruction in every branch of railroading, from locomotive driving to signal systems, is given to children by competent instructors on special demonstration cars which are routed throughout the country.

"The eventual result, it is believed, will be a sympathetic understanding by the whole people of the Empire's railroad problems."

HOW'S YOUR BLOOD?

You live vital nerve force if you allow your stomach to digest you. When you get out of it, you are a tonic—when your weight is 10 to 15 lbs. over normal, and you feel normal, and you feel good.

Follow the advice of Mrs. Rose Cook of 101 Valley St., St. Hamilton, Ont., who said: "My daughter Bessie (picture above) was in a badly run-down condition when she was six years old. She was thin, pale, and no appetite and had no energy. I saw a Canadian Medical Discovery Bulletin for me so that she ate like a horse and gained 25 lbs. in six weeks. She is now a healthy, happy girl."

Temple To The Sun

Building in England To Have 7,500 Feet Of Gardens

A temple to the sun with 7,500 square feet of hanging gardens is rising in England in the midst of one of South Hackney's most populous districts.

It is an experiment by the Bethlem and East London Housing Association in which housing experts, builders and architects have worked together to evolve the "sun temple" in the midst of the slums.

"We were faced with the problem of making the flats as much like houses as possible," said the architect, J. E. M. Macgregor, "and so we provided each flat with its own private garden on the same level." The first section of the "sun temple," containing 16 flats, each with a minimum of 200 square feet of hanging garden open to the sky will be completed in the near future.

Even on a dark day the building with its yellow brick walls and red tile roof, suggests sunshine. To make the gardens possible a new kind of building of pyramid shape was devised, the flats being built on a series of steps, each covered flat. This hall will be let as a market.

It is one of the first buildings in the world to be built on the cantilever system.

Received An Answer

"Good gracious!" shouted the schoolmaster. "I ask you the simple question, 'what is a fortification?' and get no answer!"

The scholars stared, but no one answered. The master tried again. Pointing to the boy at the bottom of the class, he demanded: "Tell me, what is a fortification?"

"Two twentifications, sir," came the answer.

Reduction in Insurance Rates

Hudson Bay Route Season Has Also Been Extended

Marine Insurance rates on the Hudson Bay route have been reduced for the coming year and the season extended eight days, Railway Minister Howe announced in the House of Commons.

The season this year will last from Aug. 5 to Oct. 10 before surcharges are added to marine insurance. The season last year was from Aug. 10 to Oct. 7.

The earlier date of opening is qualified by the provision that no ship must pass Cape Chidley, In- to must be Churchill, until the government ice breaker, the N. B. McLean, leaves the word. Cape Chidley is at the eastern end of the strait.

The reduction in insurance rates applies only to hulls and machinery and does not apply to cargo. It is a premium charged by marine underwriters over and above the year round insurance carried by vessels. The year round rate covers them against accident on all trade routes of the world except a selected few. Annual marine cargo insurance is one of these routes, a premium has to be paid. The Hudson Bay route is one of these routes and the premium to be paid has now been reduced to 25 per cent.

The reduction of insurance rates amounts to 25 per cent. A vessel of 5,000 tons, valued at $250,000 equipped with Gyro compass, will pay $625 per round trip. The same boat in 1933 paid $1,250. In 1934: $1,125 in 1935 and $645 in 1936. Reductions resulted from representations to the Imperial Shipping Commission in London.

Sound Financial Policies

Secret Of Britain's Success Opinion Of Former High Commissioner

Sound financial policies adopted three years ago are responsible for Great Britain's "muddling through" in the world trade crisis, according to the opinion of C. Howard Ferguson, recent Canadian High Commissioner to London and former Premier of Ontario.

Mr. Ferguson, who arrived at San Francisco on the last lap of a world tour, which took him to all parts of the British Empire, declared the activity of the Mother Country was reflected in all parts of the Empire.

"There are no other countries in the world where business is as good. Great Britain leads, and Canada and South Africa run her a close second," he said.

One of the reasons for farm failures in Canada, Mr. Ferguson believes, was the cultivation of too much ground. His 35-acre farm near Ottawa had paid him a net profit of $1,000 per year for the past 20 years.

A Knight Of George

Duke Of Kent Is Now Member Of The Order

Although St. George's Day received no general commemoration in London, special significance attached to the annual service of the Order of St. Michael and St. George held at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The Duke of Kent, appointed a Knight of the Grand Cross last year, wore for the first time the rich mantle of Saxon blue with the elaborate collar and chain over his naval uniform. The procession to the high altar consisted of other high officers as richly apparelled.

In the chapel of the order, which is part of the cathedral, the Duke of Kent's banner was ceremonially hung, and the banners of those knights who had died during the year were taken down.

Must Lower Trade Barriers

Revival Of World Trade Necessary To Halt Economic Distress

Declaring there is a "rising danger" of a catastrophic world war, U.S. Secretary Hull at Washington, attacked what he termed the "naïve folly" of "excessive" trade barriers.

A revival of world trade through a lowering of such barriers is necessary to halt the "virulent disease" of economic distress, social unrest, dictatorships and war, Hull declared in a speech prepared for delivery to the closing session of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

"Only as the world's economic health is restored will individuals and nations develop again adequate resistance to the psychological madness that makes possible internal and external strife," the secretary of state said.

"Describing the new reciprocal trade policy, Hull said that if it were scrapped, the United States would take a 'fatal' step backward."

Forecasts of what is to come when the Canadian air mail is resumed in 1937, as current plans call for, is given in the latest issue of "The Bulletin," published by Canadian Airways Ltd.

It shows a photograph of two officers of the company dressed in a snappy blue uniform of Canadian Airways, complete to peaked caps, with the familiar Canada Goose emblem of the company. Don't Guess But Know Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists later "Aspirin" made the fastest method yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and other ailments. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY — LAWRENCE A. KEATINGE

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Bow Valley businessmen, warning them of the danger of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and Helen Askin, who are behind the irrigation plan, accuse Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he goes to leave, she "spreads" Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's friend, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is unhurt.

Fleming is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Helen Askin, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he goes to leave, she "spreads" Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's friend, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is unhurt.

Buzz Hamilton arrives back at Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank going to get payment of wages for work on the dam. Roper, Kligo and Jackpot meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time his sister and Link come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks. Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposal to Buzz, making it appear that Link was trying to ruin him. Buzz, inflamed with anger and anger, tries to threaten Fleming, but is thrown to the floor. Then Helen appears and tells Fleming she has been robbed of the $800 they had obtained from the bank.

On their arrival home they were met by a couple of Link's men, who told Fleming that there was a man at the dam, and that he was afraid they were not getting their wages. Link told them of the robbery and promised them their wages as soon as possible. The men reluctantly returned to the dam.

Fleming finds Roper and Jackpot. Link making trouble for his workmen, and ordering them to place at the point of his gun. Both Roper and Roper's men are shot. Link telling Fleming to carry his gun home, as he would shoot him the next time they met.

(Now Go On With The Story)

"Kligo balked you into this trick. Know his brand," Fleming continued with bitterness. "He swung you against me before you'd been in the county five minutes. It gnaws at him because he lost to me the land I'm going to irrigate, playin' poker. And he needs more of his stock'll starve. He's plumb jealous. Can't you see it, Buzz?"

The visitor's facial muscles worked. "I can see Kligo's a whole lot of friends of mine out there, you see! Then yuh must advise Helen, to give me the responsibility of running the spread!"

"Yes. But by no means that power of attorney. You haven't earned it!" Buzz stood eyeing him, panting hard. Plain in his nose and now with the desire to spring upon him. But he was unarmored—a condition of his parole—or certainly he would have whipped out a gun. His lack-luster eyes blazed bitter, unyielding hate.

"I'm entitled to my share of the ranch, and if you don't help me get it, I'll find another way. Like this: heaven, the yuh burst out suddenly, 'yuh hadn't had me paroled? Roper would've got me a whole pardon, but he could have my rights!'"

"He lied to you. Kligo never thought of it, and anyhow he hasn't got enough influence to have it. Let's approach. Look here, Buzz, Link asked, forcing a conciliatory tone, 'let's cut this out. Tell Helen I'm in favor of making yuh foreman or manager. Stay, down in your heart, yuh believe in the dam. Don't you, no?'"

The look he received was one of supreme contempt. "I'm not so blind but what I can see yuh skinnin' me. I'll make yuh pay for it. Eight hundred bucks yuh fixed to rob her—"

"Hold on!" Buzz brank back as if he feared a blow. "You know I had nothing to do with that! Fleming robbed, his pride stabbed at the cuffs. 'Are you going to make out of this?'"

"I'll pull that job? There isn't a scrap of evidence of it, Buzz Hamilton!" Now the visitor was the more self-important of the two. His upper lip curled back in a sneer. "There's isn't eh? Well, yuh can buffalo Sheriff Stephen but not this and me! That heathen cuss Helen grabbed for a clue comes from Buster Townsend, your foreman. The guy you switched to switch the dam, and he's a damn liar. Well yuh still claim yuh didn't hire Townsend to pull the holdup?"

Fleming leaned weakly against the corral rail, his incredulous stare fastened on Buzz. "Townsend? You mean Buster? Why, guess, there must be some mistake. My own foreman would never claim yuh didn't hire Townsend to pull the holdup!"

"It's hard to crawl out of, eh, Fleming?" "Like a mother jerked bolt upright. Let me tell you, Link, if Townsend owns those cuffs, and he held up Helen for that night hundred, he'll pull it out of me. I'll have it out of me in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's friend, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is unhurt.

Fleming is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Helen Askin, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he goes to leave, she "spreads" Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's friend, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is unhurt.

Buzz Hamilton arrives back at Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank going to get payment of wages for work on the dam. Roper, Kligo and Jackpot meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time his sister and Link come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks. Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposal to Buzz, making it appear that Link was trying to ruin him. Buzz, inflamed with anger and anger, tries to threaten Fleming, but is thrown to the floor. Then Helen appears and tells Fleming she has been robbed of the $800 they had obtained from the bank.

On their arrival home they were met by a couple of Link's men, who told Fleming that there was a man at the dam, and that he was afraid they were not getting their wages. Link told them of the robbery and promised them their wages as soon as possible. The men reluctantly returned to the dam.

Fleming finds Roper and Jackpot. Link making trouble for his workmen, and ordering them to place at the point of his gun. Both Roper and Roper's men are shot. Link telling Fleming to carry his gun home, as he would shoot him the next time they met.

corner dashed to the fringes of trees in time to see a pair of horses streak away, heads lowered, spurs scratching, as they pressed their mounts faster.

Already they were poor revolver targets. Staring at the figures, one dark-shirted, the other wearing a dark cloth vest, Link uttered a surprised whistle. "When they were quite gone he strode grimly back to his own house, caught the animal's reins, and mounted.

The lurking assassins were Buzz and Kligo! Their purpose in trying to kill him was evident—Link had the Star Loop to become part of the Triple H according to the agreement between Link and Helen. The treacherous Roper egged him on, planning to have his own time to work on Buzz with some wily schemes to great away all his ranch, plus Silver Creek Dam."

Arriving at the place to leave his horse, he dismounted and ran quickly to the corral, where he found quarters to find no one about. But quaters and exclamations caused him to hurry down the ladder to the lower level, then, upstairs on the terrace cut-off he was greeted by a woman he called. "Did you get for a doctor?"

The foreman started. "Gosh, no!" Link leaped to his feet. Something about his attitude aroused suspicion, and remembering what Buzz Hamilton had said about Buster's leather cuffs, Fleming hurried his employees with keen disapproval. But he checked the speech that rose to his lips and strode to the other hurt man.

"Mac, need a rider for Doc Slater pronto. Have 'em till the time to a good horse. Get a couple of men, something to move these men. Start them right away. Hmm, he murmured, kneeling beside the second victim, 'yuh've banded up some eh, Jimmie?'"

A Piece Of String

Plenty Of Trouble

Seems Insignificant But Can Cause A Piece of string? It is the name of one of Maupassant's most famous stories. The miserly jacob of a peasant who was seen to stoop and pick up something one day in a market place was not believed when he said it was only a piece of string.

He suspected of having appropriated a purse lost by a neighbor. And the more he protested his innocence the more he was disbelieved. He was suspected of having appropriated a purse lost by a neighbor. And the more he protested his innocence the more he was disbelieved.

A piece of string—something to play cat's-cradle with, or spin a top, something a robin might find and weave into its nest.

A piece of string—deadly instrument of the garroter of India. A piece of string, a fragment of hemp or flax, valuable; yet costing pennies, two lives—that of the wretched man who stole it, and that of the man it betrayed. Only a piece of string, forgotten behind a clew; yet it has brought a self-confessed murderer face to face with the electric chair.

Little Help For This Week

Am I my brother's keeper? Genesis 4:9.

Because I held upon my selfishness. And left my brother wounded by the way. And called ambition duty, and pressed on—

O Lord, I do repent.

How many are the sufferers who have fallen amongst misfortune along the way of life. "By chance" we come that way, chance, accident, Providence had thrown them in our way. We see them from a distance like the Priest, or we come upon them suddenly like the Levite. Our pleasure or our business is interrupted by the night, or troubled by the delay. What are our feelings and our actions toward them? "Who is thy neighbor?" It is the sufferer, wherever, wherever, he be. Whenever you hear the cry of distress, wherever you see any one brought across your path by the chances and changes of life (that is by the Providence of God) and whom it is in your power to help, stranger or enemy though he be, is your neighbor.

Using Old Water System

Lines Laid Down By Canas Solving Problem In Egypt

The problem of water supply in the western desert of Egypt is being solved by the British on lines laid down by the old Roman armies. Roman legions dug a labyrinth of ditches underground, ranged in series of galleries like those in a mine, and extending two or three miles. From these cisterns an assured supply of sweet water can be taken.

Excavation of these cisterns is going forward rapidly, and they are now one of the main sources of supply.

It is supposed that these reservoirs were used to store fresh water in rainless years of the early Christian era, when, according to the story, this region was the granary of Rome.

High School Sports

The girls softball and the boys baseball teams of the local high school played their first game of the 1936 season, Wednesday evening with ideal weather prevailing.

The Gleichen Redbirds, highly rated and decked out in classy new uniforms were the opposition for the H.S. girls. Playing a full nine innings the local club came out on the long end of a 17-16 score, to win the first game of the season.
For 5 innings the girls displayed clever softball, the Redbirds seeming to have a little the better of the argument. In the last half of the fifth the Arrowwood girls went on a scoring spurge and from then on maintained a lead. The Redbirds are a snappy and classy club, but our local girls are just as good. If you want to see real girls softball be on hand when these two clubs meet again, Gleichen 9 1 0 0 2 1 7 0 0 5-16 Arrowwood 3 0 1 0 6 4 9 0 x-17

In the seven inning baseball game between the Gleichen and Arrowwood school teams, Gleichen emerged victorious by a 11-7 score. At the end of the third inning the score was a draw, 3-3. Timely hits by the Arrowwood club in the 4th put the locals in the lead 7-4. Rallies in the last innings by the Gleichen boys proved successful and at the close of the game they had a total of 11 runs. The Arrowwood battery consisted of Richards, Dumka and Norton and shortage of feed in some districts. Winter losses have not been abnormal. Grass is now growing rapidly in most districts and relief from feed shortage is already being felt.

A slight increase in butterfat deliveries to creameries in the Province for the first four months of the year is reported. This increase was more substantial in the south and central sections than in the north.

Annual Meeting of Marquis Athletic Club

The annual meeting of the Marquis Athletic Club was held in Milo last Saturday. The first part of the evening was spent in dancing, after which the business part of the meeting was held.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows:
President—Frank Wyatt.
Vice-Pres.—Arch Oldfield.
Sec.—Treas.—Jack Bushell.
Owing to the poor support shown the organization during the past year it was decided to try to hold an amateur sports in conjunction with some other Sports day or Picnic.

A committee consisting of the officers were appointed to arrange for the Sports Meet.

The meeting also decided to present Jim Wyatt with presents for the two years 1932 and 1933 when he tied as champion athlete but lost out on the toss of a coin. This was the policy adopted last year when two trophy cups were given.

Several of the school children from Rocky Butte School are taking part in the music festival in High River on Friday. The teacher, Miss E. Gilhooly has chosen the following to represent the school: Grace and Albert Bushell, Foy and Geyral Hellevang, Happy and May Heather and Bert Clemmensen.

The High School boys of the Pioneer and Rocky Butte districts are forming a base ball team and will soon be ready to challenge all comers.

Soil drifting in the south and east has been less extensive than usual, only one or two having reported any serious trouble in this respect.

In the south and central areas there appears to be a tendency toward a slight increase in wheat acreage, but any increase there may be counteracted by a reduction in the north, especially if the seeding in the north is unduly delayed. Supplies of seed are adequate except in a few very limited districts in the north, where frost injury last last season was very severe.
